R. R. STRIKERS MEET CITIZENS

MAYOR CANFIELD INVITES WORKERS TO AID IN KEEPING UP LOCAL SERVICE.

The fact that unless the railroads could continue in operation and supply our mills with raw material it became evident that our factories might soon be forced to close down and there by throw hundreds of men out of employment. As mayor of our town Dr. Canfield concluded that he would call a meeting of the striking railroad men in conjunction with the local business men in the endeavor to try and moderate matters so that the local shops might be able to render such service that the repair work at the railroad shops might continue and thus our mills be kept in operation.

The meeting was called for last Saturday night at the Board of Trade rooms, and was well attended. It was presided over by Holger F. Peterson, president of the Board of Trade. M. Hanson, speaking in the interest of Grayling generally asked the strikers if it would be possible for them to go back to their jobs provided they were assured that when the strike was settled that they continue in their same positions that they had previously held. He showed them that if the strike continued that our mills would have to be closed and many men would be out of work and business would suffer generally. He asked them to do this for the good of our town.

James Cameron speaking for the railroad men, said that this would be impossible for them to do so, as they were under orders of their head officials, and said that they could not return to work until such time as they were ordered to do so by these officials. He then read an extensive report of their affairs that lead up to the call of the strike, covering a period of nearly two years. In the report were communications between the unions and the operators as well as with the U. S. labor board.

There had been several reports in circulation that some of the men now working at the round house had been intimidated and that there had even been threats that they would be killed if they continued to work there. Such reports the railroad men declined to believe and assured the citizens that they could depend upon it that no person would be molested by any of their union members.

There was considerable discussion but it was plain to be seen that nothing could be done to help local matters. Considerable protest was made by the strikers because of the fact that the Michigan Central was having armed guards on duty at the shops to protect the workers. To assure the Grayling people of their good faith they offered their services as guards to protect the property of the Company.

NOTICE.

As required by Section 17, of Act No. 339 of the Public Acts of the State of Michigan for the year 1919, I shall on the 15th day of July next turn over to the sheriff and prosecuting attorney of Crawford County a complete list of all unlicensed dogs for the year 1922 as made out from reports furnished me by the various township supervisors and treasurers, and the assessor of Grayling Village. According to these reports there appears to be a large number of unlicensed dogs in this county. All dog owners who have not already secured licenses should obtain same from me at once in order to avoid the penalties prescribed by statute.

Edwin S. Chalker,
Treasurer Crawford County.

SPECIAL TO THE "SLACKER."

Some of our business men are not getting in line. Several merchants have not yet taken it on themselves to attend the meetings of our business men. You can not get by any longer with "Let George do it." It is up to every business man to get out and meet with us when the time comes. Unless some of these men make an effort to get out and make it known that they are willing to help we are going to advertise them as such. Our last meeting was not very well attended but it was a real get-together occasion and those who stayed away have missed something and they are going to miss a great deal more unless they get out and rub shoulders with the rest. Those who attended the last meeting, July 10, are as follows:

George Burke.
James McDonald.
A. J. Joseph.
Thos. Trudo.
Ben Yoder.
O. A. Hilton.
A. Trudeau, Sr.
Harvey Wheeler.
Efner Matson.
Dr. C. R. Keyport.
H. F. Peterson.
H. A. Bauman.
John Rosenstand.
Arnold Burrows.
Robert Legner.
F. R. Welsh.
Burt Mitchell.

B. A. Cooley.
George Collins.
T. P. Peterson.
H. W. Colbath.
Hans Peterson.
C. W. Peterson.
M. Hanson.
O. P. Schumann.
Julius Jensen.
P. Moran.
A. M. Lewis.
L. J. Kraus.
Frank Lamotte.
J. C. Yahr.
C. W. Olson.
R. N. Martin.

Some of these men have attended every meeting called. Others have attended one or more. Those who do come to the meeting are interested in the welfare of our village and are boosting their own business. The time is coming when the general public will discriminate against the fellow who takes all and gives nothing. We notice one fellow made a particular "holer" and he doesn't seem interested in anything except his own particular welfare. Another fellow is trying to hinder the business of two other merchants. He will bear watching and we expect to see him sadly missed some day for butting in where he has no right. If you can't boost, don't knock, but, why not boost?

Some of our merchants are not observing a regular closing hour. Most of them are and the rest could and should fall in line. We believe it is necessary for the best interests of everyone. There is no reason why grocers, clothing merchants, hardware merchants, jewelers, barbers, furniture dealers and others could not have a set closing hour. Clerks are entitled to consideration and the merchants should provide themselves with leisure hours for recreation, time at home and now and then an evening to meet with his fellows in business. Co-operation among our merchants is needed in this respect. Friendly calls should be the rule as well. Patronize your brother merchant and co-operate with him always.

At the last meeting a general discussion on good roads, paving our main street, taxation, welfare of our business men, was held and all present were interested. Some real talks developed in the interest of each subject. It is the opinion of all that our business men are getting better acquainted and have a more cordial feeling toward each other.

Attention was called to the terrible condition of the road leading to Lake Margrethe. This road has been recently graded on top of the old road bed and it is in no better condition than formerly. This should be remedied at once as the heavy traffic will be on this road when the soldiers are camped at the reservation. The county road commissioners should make every possible effort to have this road put in good condition at once.

We are going to have some large signs made and placed where they will do the most good for Grayling. Also signs are being made to be placed on all roads leading to Grayling. We believe in signs and they will soon be placed where all can see that Grayling is a live town and a good place to live.

On Sunday, July 16th, there will be an excursion over the M. & N. E. R. R. from Manistee to Grayling. It will be well for all our merchants and business men, as well as all our towns people to turn out and welcome the visitors, and entertain them. We want to show these visitors that we are boosters for Grayling and besides being DARN GOOD FOLKS. Our local ball team have provided a good game for this day. Every body help.

Our Board of Trade is planning a Field Day for August 5th. Everybody in Crawford and adjoining counties will be invited. Mr. R. D. Conning has kindly donated the use of his grove out in the street for the festivities. More details will be given later and all will be asked to get busy and make this a big day.

By the way, our good citizen Mr. M. Hanson has provided a radio-phone for the Board of Trade and it will be used for the pleasure and benefit of every one. It will be installed shortly.

PRO BONO PUBLICO.

$35,000 VOTED AT SCHOOL MEETING

As usual the attendance at the annual school meeting was small, there being just 13 legal voters in attendance, 10 men and three ladies.

The usual reports were offered, showing the amounts received and spent during the past year, an account of which will appear in print in the AVALANCHE at an early date.

Dr. C. R. Keyport, whose term of office expired at this time, was re-elected for another term of 3 years. Thorwald P. Peterson received five votes out of the 13 cast. President Keyport and Secretary M. A. Bates told of some of the things that the board had accomplished during the past year and also of some of the things they hoped to do. There were also a few remarks by some of the patrons and the board was congratulated upon some of the good things they had accomplished. The addition of domestic science and art to the school curriculum also seemed to please some of the patrons.

CIRCUIT COURT PROCEEDINGS.

The July term of Circuit court that convened at the Court house Tuesday noon was a short one. Hon. Guy E. Smith of Gladwin was present and Claude L. Austin, court stenographer of West Branch was in his usual place.

There were four criminal cases of violation of the prohibition law. In the matter of The People vs. William H. Mosher, the defendant stood mute, and the case was continued to the October term of court. In the cases of The People vs. Arthur Bolt, Tom Butler and Rolly Sullivan, all three pleaded guilty and were sentenced to pay a fine of $25 and costs of $25 or 90 days in jail. Sullivan paid his fine, but the others have not decided which they will do.

The assumption cases of Vitagraph Incorporated vs. Benjamin Lansberg, et al. Jackson Steel Products Company vs. McIntyre & Nelson and Alpena Battery Service Corporation vs. Seeley B. Wakeley were all continued to the next term of court. Also the divorce case of Lucille Hahn vs. Loyd N. Hahn and the case of John Morrissey vs. Julia LaVenture petition for modification of decree were continued. The case of Annie Banfield vs. Louis Banfield, divorce was dismissed.

No jury was impaneled for this term.

AVOID DROWNING. LEARN TO SWIM.

"Learn to swim—drowning season now open"—Y. M. C. A. sign.

"Come on in the water's fine" bathing beach sign.

Hundreds of swimmers who heeded the first slogan are bathing this year while 223 persons who rushed into the water on reading the second announcement last year were drowned.

"Don't swim within an hour after eating has long been a swimming don't, but even more important than that is the don't that prohibits swimming when one is tired or the body overheated," says Dr. R. M. Olin, state health commissioner. "A large percentage of drownings in four months of 1921 was caused by persons becoming exhausted because they were tired before they began swimming or because the body was so overheated that the cold water produced cramps with disastrous effects. Bathing during the hot part of the day is dangerous."

Every summer claims its quota of victims by drowning. Figures compiled in the bureau of vital statistics for four months of 1921 show the number who came to their death by drowning:

June 77; July 92; August 37; September 17; Total 223.

"If everyone knew how to prepare for a swim and knew the mere rudiments of artificial respiration fewer persons would be sacrificed," says Dr. Olin. "When a bather has been brot from the water apparently drowned, don't delay a moment in beginning resuscitation. At any minute up to two or three hours signs of recovery may appear. Use the Schafer or one man method of restoring breathing. Before going into the water, one should feel confident of his stroke, be in good physical condition and never tired or overheated."

FISH HATCHERY CLOSES SUCCESSFUL YEAR.

The Grayling Fish Hatchery will close down this week. They have finished this year's planting, which was 4,700,000 brook trout and 270,000 rainbow. We consider this pretty good for the size of the hatchery. The Grayling hatchery does not look for so many eggs next year, on account of so many hatcheries being built in the state, the one at Wolverine which will be the largest in the state will no doubt plant the northeastern part, the one at the lower peninsula, but it is expected that the Grayling hatchery will get its usual allotment for the County and south of here.

BAR ASS'N HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

Harristons of 34th Judicial District Meet for Business and Pleasure.

Judge Nelson Sharpe of Supreme Court is Guest of Honor.

The attorneys of the 34th judicial circuit, comprising the counties of Gladwin, Arenac, Ogemaw, Roscommon, Crawford and Otsego, met in Grayling Monday afternoon for their second annual meeting. Together with them were officials of the several counties named who are recognized as honorary members of the association.

The presence of Hon. Nelson Sharpe of the Supreme court, a former judge of this judicial district, added greatly to the pleasantness of the occasion and we are sure that none enjoyed bumping elbows any more than did he. The afternoon was devoted to a business session, a number of brief addresses, and election of officers. While this was an "annual" meeting, the last "annual" was held in West Branch October 3, 1919.

The meeting was called to order by the president, E. M. Harris of West Branch, who also responded with a talk on the subject "Necessity of getting together meetings of this character."

"Questions on which legislation is needed" was the subject of an address by James B. Ross, of West Branch. Elmer G. Smith of Grayling handled the subject of "The ethics of the profession." S. E. Hayes, of Standish, talked on the topic "Is the business of law becoming centralized in large centers?" "Are we to blame for this condition?" These talks were excellent and especially those by Mr. Smith and Mr. Hayes. The question box that was arranged for the afternoon, was postponed until the evening meeting.

Those members of the association to enroll at the meeting are as follows: Geo. L. Alexander, Grayling.

Elmer G. Smith and W. L. Townsend, Grayling.

R. J. Crandell and S. E. Hayes, Standish.

Judge Guy E. Smith and F. L. Prindle, Gladwin.

Hon. Nelson Sharpe, C. L. Austin, E. R. Chapin, William T. Yeo, James B. Ross and E. M. Harris, West Branch.

Hiram R. Smith, Roscommon.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—Willis L. Townsend, Grayling.

Vice President—Sanford E. Hayes, Standish.

Secretary-treasurer—Hiram R. Smith, Roscommon.

Executive committee—Elmer G. Smith, Otsego county; Homer L. Fitch, Crawford county; Hiram R. Smith, Roscommon county; E. R. Chapin, Ogemaw county; F. L. Prindle, Gladwin county and R. J. Crandell, Arenac county.

Guests of Business Men.

Just as soon as the afternoon session adjourned, the visitors became the guests of the Board of Trade and autos were awaiting them. Rides were taken to several of the places of attraction in this vicinity. A visit to the Reindeer ranch seemed to be most appreciated. Here many were permitted to see for the first time a herd of genuine Norwegian reindeer—52 in all, besides a large number of little ones that were born after coming to this country. Also a visit to the Hanson State military reservation and to Grayling's famous trout hatchery were enjoyed.

Banquet at Shoppenagon Inn.

Complimentary of the Board of Supervisors and J. J. Niederer, the guests were given a banquet at Shoppenagon Inn. Mrs. Bobenmeyer, manager of the dining room of that famous hostelry, did herself proud by the fine chicken dinner that was served the banqueters. After enjoying the fine repast everyone was ready to listen to the excellent talks that were given.

Hiram R. Smith, of Roscommon, was the toastmaster. He acknowledged the fine hospitality that had been accorded them and on behalf of the association thanked the citizens for the good time they had given them and the Board of supervisors for the fine banquet. As the first speaker he introduced Willis L. Townsend of Grayling, one of the old attorneys of that city and a man who is greatly beloved in his home community because of his genuineness and high ideals.

Mr. Townsend spoke on "Our Supreme court." His address was masterfully prepared and beautifully given, and none could help but have a higher esteem for our high court after hearing his remarks. He had high praise for the Supreme court because of the part it had so successfully played in framing up the great principles of justice and right in Michigan. Our Michigan court ranks second among all the states of our union, the State of Massachusetts having the honor of ranking first.

"Early associations" was the title of a subject responded to by Hon. Nelson Sharpe, justice of the Supreme court of Michigan and a former judge of our judicial district. He was paid a glowing tribute by the toastmaster and introduced as "Just plain, honest Justice Sharpe." In token of the high esteem and love in which he is held by the attorneys of the district over which he so long presided, every person rose to their feet as the speaker stood up to address them.

Judge Sharpe said that he came here to mingle again with the people of this vicinity and that he was greatly enjoying it. He complimented Mr. Townsend for his brilliant address and offered a few suggestions to his fellow attorneys, and suggested that there should be confidence on the part of the lawyers for the bench and also that judges should have confidence in the attorneys. He recalled some of the instances that had come up during the time he presided as judge in this district, and spoke of some of his early associations. The success of this district, he said, was due to the kindness of the bar and of the people.

He told of some of the workings of the Supreme court and of how that the business was developing faster than they were able to dispose of it, and spoke in favor of having an intermediate court. Such a court, he said, should be conducted at little expense to the people and should do away with the necessity of costly printed records.

O. P. Schumann, who is an honorary member of the bar association, spoke on the subject "The best advertising," and offered his listeners a few suggestions that he believed could be ethically used in the promotion of their profession. He also told of a few unusual things he had heard at various times in court.

Frank L. Prindle of Gladwin responded on the subject "How should a lawyer be guided in his fees?" He claimed that it was impractical to establish any fixed fees for service and said that he had derived as much satisfaction from cases where he had received no fees at all as he had from some that had brot him the largest fees.

"The art of briefing" was talked on by Geo. L. Alexander of this city, and he offered what seemed to an editor to be good, plain, common-sense advice. Such a brief as he would advocate would enable the higher court to understand fully and readily the subject without the necessity of lengthy perusal of the matter before them.

Dr. Oscar Palmer, whose retirement from the practice of law seems not to have lost him the high esteem of the legal profession, spoke briefly on the subject "The lawyer's ideals." He was introduced by the toastmaster as the "Grand old man of Crawford county," a title that he has long held in the hearts of his home people. As he arose he was given a splendid ovation and every person at the table arose to his feet in his honor. He assured his friends of his appreciation of the courtesy accorded him and among his brief remarks said that he hoped the Good Lord would make them all ideal.

Next was opened the question box and many queries were offered for discussion for the good of the people and the legal profession.

All proclaimed that they had had an exceptionally good meeting and a good time in Grayling. Most of the visitors returned on the night train to their respective homes, while others left in autos and some remained over the following day. We are sure that the people of Grayling feel honored in having had the Bar association as their guests and hope that they have enjoyed their visit here so well that they will want to come again.

RESOLUTION.

WHEREUPON it has been our privilege and pleasure to meet in convention upon this 11th day of July, A. D. 1922 in the Village of Grayling where we have enjoyed the hospitality of the people of said community, we, the members of the Bar Association of the 34th Judicial circuit, therefore RESOLVE that we extend a vote of thanks to the citizens of Grayling for their hospitality and especially to the members of the Board of Trade who used their autos and showed the members the sights and places of interest about the town; and also to the Board of Supervisors who so generously provided a delightful banquet at Shoppenagon Inn. All of these things are greatly appreciated, and the pleasant time we had will long be remembered.

JAMES P. HUMPHREYS, well-known automobile man of Hebron, Md., who declares he believes Tanlac is the best thing to overcome stomach trouble and run-down condition. States it completely restored his health.

"I believe in giving everything its due and I want to say right now I just can't praise Tanlac too highly for what it has done in my case," declared James P. Humphreys, proprietor of the Hebron Motor Co., Hebron, Md.

"For three years or more I suffered from indigestion. After eating I would bloat terribly with gas and my heart would palpitate until it interfered with my breathing. I was habitually constipated and my nerves were all upset. My sleep was unsound, I got up mornings all tired out, and I was only a shadow of my former self.

"Well, Tanlac has given me a keen appetite, stomach trouble has disappeared, my nerves have steadied down, and I have gained several pounds. Tanlac, to my mind, is the best thing ever sold for stomach trouble and run-down condition."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

I was a broken-down woman until my husband brought me a bottle of your Vegetable Compound and one of Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine. I had been having pains every month and at intervals between, was weak and seemed to be smothering at times, but in a week I felt like another woman. I also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. It did me a lot of good too. I cannot praise your medicines too much and will be more than glad to recommend them to any woman who is suffering from female troubles. PAYS TRIBUTE TO THE SOUTH

Capt. George Shuler Passes Command of Marines in Parade to South Carolina Officer.

Proving that the Civil war formed a nation and that the sons of the Confederacy and the Union hold no malice, Capt. George K. Shuler of Lyons, N. Y., whose forebears wore the Union blue, thought it would be most appropriate that a Southerner should take his place as commander of the marines in the parade at the unveiling of the Grant memorial. Accordingly, he selected Capt. Thomas P. Cheatham of South Carolina, whose folk fought against Grant in the struggle between the states for the honor.

Shuler had a notable record with the marines during the war. He received the Croix de Guerre, Navy medal, Distinguished Service medal and citations from Marshals Foch and Petain, General Pershing and General Lejeune.

THE SAN JACINTO DAY FLOAT

Legionnaires' Display Proves Prize-winner at the Anson (Tex.) Celebration Held April 21.

Outside of the Lone Star state, people don't do much celebrating on San Jacinto day. Down in Texas, however, the school children and everybody else take a holiday on April 21. It is the anniversary of the battle of San Jacinto, where Col. Sam Houston, with 750 soldiers, put to flight 5,000 Mexicans and took General Santa Anna and other notables of the Mexican army captive.

This year, the American Legion in all parts of Texas took part in the celebration.

FOCH PRAISES AMERICAN WAY

Pride of France Well Pleased With Enthusiasm Welcomes Through-out the Country.

Marshal Foch of France, has given to Commandant de Mierry, formerly of his staff, the task of writing the impressions of the generalissimo on his recent visit to America as the guest of the American Legion. Marshal Foch has made it a life-long rule not to write for publications of any sort.

In speaking of his trip across the American continent, Marshal Foch said: "There was always the same enthusiasm, the same warmth, all through the weeks that I travelled, no matter whether we were in the West, the North, the South or the East. No matter what the weather, thousands of men, women and children were always ready with a cordial greeting."

The Marshal paid an especially high tribute to the "cordiality and friendship of the American Legion," which he said, "rendered easy the journey of more than 20,000 kilometers in forty-five days."

OBSERVE LEE-GRANT BIRTHS

American Legion Requests Commemoration on Both Sides of Mason-Dixon Line.

Observances by posts of the American Legion on both sides of the Mason-Dixon line of the birthdays of Gen. Robert E. Lee and Gen. P. S. Grant have been requested by the national headquarters of the Legion. Legion posts in Northern states co-operated with the G. A. R. in the celebration of Grant's anniversary on April 27. The birthday of General Lee will be observed January 29, 1923.

The Legion's celebration of the birth of these two men, not as Northern and Southern, but as great Americans, will be "an effective argument that all sectionalism is buried and that the glory of the nation is the chief concern of every patriotic citizen," Lemuel Bolles, adjutant of the Legion, declares.

Jeff Dinkes was known far and wide for his economical habits, and gloried in them.
"I'll bet, Jeff," remarked an acquaintance, "that you didn't even spend money to buy your wife a birthday present this year."
"Well, yes," admitted Dinkes regretfully. "I weakened a little when her birthday came around. I went and spent two dollars puttin' an ad in the paper that she takes in sewin'."

British Columbia Goat Farms.

There are several farms in British Columbia where goats are raised exclusively and which have herds of several hundred each. These farms not only make excellent profits on milk which is shipped to Vancouver, Victoria and other cities for the use of children and invalids, but on young animals that are sold to supply the rapidly developing market.

Goat breeding is being taken up by suburban city dwellers, the people of small towns and farmers. Goats are hardy animals and if permitted a good range will rustle their own living the year around. If kept confined, their upkeep is inexpensive while their milk sells for a much higher price than cow's milk. Yields of six quarts a day are common.

Oratory.

"You have never tried to shine as a great orator?"
"No," replied Senator Sorghum. "My idea of a great orator is a man who has a vast audience unanimously with him at the meeting and then loses every one who goes home and remembers enough of the speech to think it over."

If a man has never made an ass of himself, it is probably because Nature bent him to it.

A painful duty is best performed by a substitute.

What Is It Worth to Change a Tire?

On the road changing a tire is not an especially pleasant task.

The dust or mud, the grease and grime, the tedious delay—all are things we like to avoid.

But the time to think about these things is when you buy the tire—not after the blow-out occurs.

For some tires blow out much more easily than others. Outward appearance counts for little.

It is the material in the tire and the construction of it that determines its strength.

Goodyear recognizes these facts and all Goodyear Tires are made of long staple cotton.

Take the 30 x 3 1/4 Cross Rib Clincher Tire here illustrated, for example.

It is made of Arizona cotton, the fibres of which average 1 1/2 inches long.

Many 30 x 3 1/4 clincher tires are made of short staple cotton from 1/2 inch to 1 1/4 inches long.

This means less strength and greater danger of blow-outs—more tire troubles.

Yet this high grade guaranteed Goodyear Tire costs only $10.95.

You can buy some tires for even less than this but none with the fine materials and construction of this one.

Can you afford to take a chance on more frequent tire troubles for the sake of the slightly lower price of cheaper tires?

WHEN Hyman and Hess, dealers in cloaks and suits on State street, Albany, N. Y., sent a check for $38.77 to Kels and Blum, garment manufacturers in New York city, they didn't have the slightest idea that they were starting a chain of evidence which would land one of the cleverest crooks in America behind the bars.

A few days later, before the New York firm had had time to report the nonarrival of the check and thus permit Hyman and Hess to look into the matter, a young man came into the National Commercial bank in Albany and presented a check for $38.00, made out to "Boland." The date on the check, filled in with a rubber stamp, corresponded to the day on which it was presented, and the man who handed it to the paying teller mentioned casually that the check "was to cover an option" and that he had to hurry back to New York in order to complete the transaction. The paying teller, feeling certain that the signature was genuine, cashed the check, and the man who had presented it walked out of the bank with $38.00 in his pocket.

When Hyman and Hess had their account balanced they found that they were exactly $38.00 short—for the original check had never reached its New York destination, but had been lifted out of the mail box by one of a gang of clever criminals, the body of the check erased with an ink eraser and the date and amount filled in on top of the original signature.

"Only one man in the country could have done that and gotten away with it," growled George A. Fuller, assistant superintendent of the Pinkerton Detective agency, when the bank called the details of the case to his attention. "It's Boland's work."

"Yes, Boland," replied Fuller. "Or Gardner, as he sometimes calls himself. He's got a regular organization for this sort of thing. Trains boys to loot the mail boxes, washes the checks with an acid preparation of his own invention, writes in a higher amount, makes them payable to 'Boland,' and then another of his tools cashes them."

"If you know so much about the man," asked the amazed banker, "why hasn't he been arrested long before this?"

"It's easy enough to arrest a man," was Fuller's reply, "but it is sometimes very difficult to convict him. So far as the actual check-raising goes, Boland plays a lone hand. What's more, he plays his man well, and takes care of him if they happen to get caught. So far, none of us has turned state's evidence, and until they do—or until we catch Boland red-handed—there's nothing to do but be careful. We've got our eyes on him. He can't move without our knowing it."

Warned by Hyman and Hess check that the Boland outfit was once more conducting operations in New York state, the Pinkerton man kept close watch on all persons suspected of belonging to the organizations, with the result that three men were arrested and sentenced to terms in prison. But all of them steadfastly refused to implicate the "man higher up."

Finally Boland and three of his associates were arrested in Boston, after Fuller had shadowed a boy whom he suspected of robbing a mail box. Dano, the boy, and Devine, another of the organization, drew short terms for petty larceny, but Boland escaped on account of a technicality, and moved to New York where he tried to continue his operations. But the New York police and particularly Commissioner George S. Donaghy, made things so difficult that he was soon reduced to the expedient of securing checks wherever he could—a necessity which led to the fatal slip which Fuller had predicted.

Out of the mail box of an up-town apartment house, one of Boland's apprentices secured a check for $50, made out to a real estate company in payment of the rental for one of the apartments. It was child's play for Boland to wash off the original name and amount, and to write in the words "Boland" and "Two Hundred and Eleven Dollars." Once that was done, he had a perfectly good check (apparently) and he sent one of his men down to the bank on which the check was drawn, with minute instructions as to the cashing of it. But the cashier, being suspicious of a check of that size being made out to "Boland"—particularly as he knew that the woman whose signature appeared upon it was very careful in her financial dealings—declined to cash it, and Boland's man returned with a story of having been watched and therefore very fearful to approach the paying window.

Boland, in a spirit of bravado, again altered the check, this time making it out in the name of "William Hath" and set forth to cash the check himself, something which he had never before attempted. One glance at the odd amount—$211—and the recollection that a check of similar size had been presented that morning, payable to "Boland," was enough to convince the paying teller that something was wrong. The Pinkertons were immediately notified and Boland was caught, red-handed.

Fifteen minutes after his case came up in the County court in Brooklyn, Boland was on his way to Sing Sing.

The Mosquito

According to an old negro mammy, who has passed all her days in New Orleans, the mosquito is a scheming, treacherous bug. "Here he comes," she says, "close to you, signin', lovin' and gentle-like. 'Cousin, cousin.' But just as soon as he's got a good meal he ain't got no more use for you than pizen. Then he flirts his ugly, skinny old head and nabs away, singin' 'No kin, no kin, no kin.'"—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

THE HOME RADIO

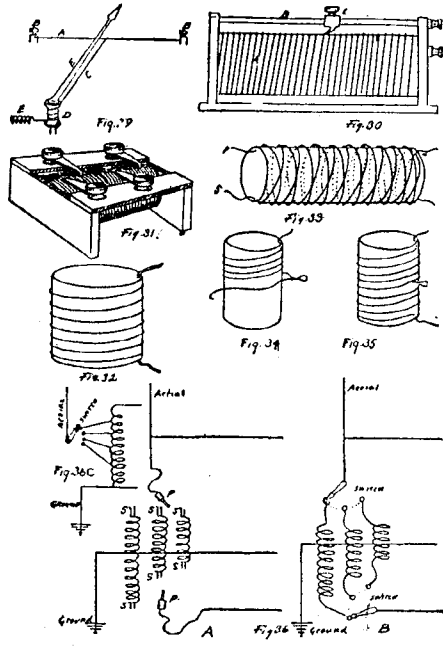

How to Make and Use It

By A. HYATT VERRILL

Copyright by Harper & Brothers

AMMETERS

Ammeters are instruments designed to measure the flow of electricity through the wires and are often very essential parts of a radio outfit. They consist, as far as exterior appearances go, of a dial marked with figures and a hand or needle. Although they are not high priced and it is not advisable to try to make them, still there is nothing mysterious or complicated about them and the amateur, who likes to experiment with home-made instruments, can readily construct an ammeter which will work and is fairly reliable. This instrument is known as a "hot-wire ammeter" (Fig. 29).

INDUCTANCES AND TUNING COILS

In order to receive and hear sounds sent from transmitting stations by radio waves clearly and without interference or confusion, a device of some sort is required which will cut out all waves save those desired. This is known as "tuning" and the instruments or appliances used to accomplish it are called "tuners." There are now a great many different devices for tuning, such as tuning-coils, loose couplers, vario-couplers, variometers, variable condensers, etc. Of these, all but the variable condensers (which see) are coils of various types, the simplest, but by no means the most efficient, being the simple tuning-coils. These consist of a coil of bare wire wound about a core or cylinder of wood, fibre or pasteboard and provided with sliding contacts as shown in Fig. 30, in which A is the coil, B, the slide rod and C, the slider.

By moving the slider from coil to coil of the wire the wave length of the receiving instruments may be adjusted to catch the desired sound of that wave length. Such coils are very easily made by winding a pasteboard tube—which should be soaked in melted paraffine to render it waterproof—with bare copper wire about No. 18, making about 40 turns and leaving a space of 1-16 inch between the turns. If two or more sliders or contacts are arranged still finer adjustment will be attainable while, by providing rotary switches with five contacts as shown in Fig. 31, still better results will be secured. Although, as stated, these coils are easily made, yet they are so cheap that many prefer to purchase them ready made rather than bother making them. Simple coils or inductances, however, are even simpler, as they consist merely of a few turns of insulated copper wire wound on a pasteboard tube, the number of turns depending upon the wave lengths to be received. In some sets there is but one coil or helix (Fig. 32, while in other sets there are two, a primary and secondary (Fig. 33, and as a rule the coil should be tapped and the circuit connected at the tap-off (Fig. 34). This is best done by taping a loop or twist in the wire at the desired point and then continuing winding as Fig. 35. Of course, in making the connection at this tap-off the

A SIMPLE VACUUM TUBE RECEIVING SET

This set is one of the simplest that can be devised to use a vacuum tube detector and it may be set up by anyone at a lower cost than the ordinary crystal sets may be purchased ready-made. Moreover, tuning in this set is simplified to the minimum, there being but two adjustments to be made, the variable condenser and the rheostat. The whole set is plainly shown in Fig. 54, A being the aerial, B the ground, C the variable condenser, D the inductance, E the grid-leak, F the fixed condenser, G the grid, H the plate of tube, I the rheostat, J the six-volt battery, K the phone receiver and L the 22 volt B-battery.

The single inductance used is easily made by winding a pasteboard tube about three inches in diameter and two inches long with about forty-six turns of No. 28 double-covered cotton insulated copper wire. There should be a tap-off taken at the twenty-third turn (which is done by making a loop in the wire) and then the next twenty-three turns wound on. The fixed condenser and grid leak can be made as described in the article on "condensers" and the grid-leak, for best results, should be variable, which is easily arranged by using a paper and pencil leak and by adding lines or erasing them as described under "condensers." The fixed condenser should be about .001 mfd. and the variable condenser of from .0005 to .0007 mfd. Be sure to place the phone receiver and B-battery in series, the positive pole of the battery being connected to the tap-off on the inductance and the negative pole being led to the receivers as shown. In setting up and tuning you will very likely find it necessary to take one or two turns of wire from the upper end of the coil, which is easily done. In operating this set first bring the tube filament to a point where the oscillations produce a squeal or howl with the variable condenser set at zero. Then, by moving the condenser pointer over the scale slowly and carefully, you can determine the best point to receive signals. When this is determined, adjust the rheostat until the filament oscillates and then decrease the brightness a little. With a little practice and by marking the knobs you will be able to readily adjust the set very accurately and quickly.

DOCTORS PLAN A NEW "FINDER"

Chicago doctors are planning to install radio outfits in country clubs and on the golf links, so that they may be summoned by ailing patients. The doctors' information bureau, with offices in the Masonic Temple, was commissioned to find out the best method for installing such sets. "A great number of the medical profession are golf fans," says a letter from the bureau, "and last year we secured a fine platinum wire A, secured between two fixed supports B, B, a thread C, fastened to the center of the wire and passed around a spool or spindle D, a spring attached to the end of the thread E, and a pointer or hand fastened immovably to the top of the spindle F. The electrical connections are made at B, B, and as soon as a current passes through the platinum wire, A, the wire becomes heated and expands, thus allowing the thread to slacken. The slack is instantly taken up by the spring E, thus revolving the spindle and swinging the needle to one side. The greater the current the more the pointer swings and so, by arranging a dial with marks under the needle and testing the device with currents of known force, a fairly accurate instrument can be made. Needless to say, the parts must be small and neatly and accurately made and the spring must be adjusted to merely hold the thread tightly without pulling or bending the wire appreciably. Also, the length of the wire is a great factor for the longer the wire the greater will be the amount it expands, and consequently the greater the movement of the needle; but, on the other hand, it will be more difficult to adjust a long wire to remain tight than a shorter one and the only way to determine the proportion of the various parts is to experiment.

wire should be scraped free of insulation to make the joint, after which it should be wrapped with adhesive tape. In making these simple inductance coils it is best to put on more turns of wire than you think is actually required, as it is far easier to remove one turn at a time, until the desired wave length is obtained, than it is to add turns after the instruments are set up. Similar simple coils are used in many parts of receiving sets, such as the radio-choke in Fig. 50, L, etc. By making several tap-offs and then leading them to the various contacts of a multiple-point switch, Fig. 36, C, excellent results may be obtained especially with the smaller crystal sets with a single simple coil. Another way by which waves of varying lengths may be received by means of simple coils without tuning devices, is to have several coils of various sizes so arranged that they may be connected or disconnected with your set at will. This may be done, either by means of plugs and sockets as in Fig. 38, A, or by switches with several contacts as shown in Fig. 30, B. Still finer adjustment may be obtained by providing each coil with a slider or similar tuning device. This will give a wide range of wave lengths and will obviate all need of taking turns off the coils and as such coils are very easy to make you can have as many as you desire of different sizes.

Another very different type of inductance-coil consists of two windings, known as primary and secondary, and are similar to the ordinary sparking coils used in older type automobiles. In power boats, etc. These are known also as transformers (which see) and while they can be made at home yet it is a tedious and difficult job to wind on the hundreds of turns of wire properly and as such coils are expensive it is never advisable to attempt it, unless you wish to make everything yourself, just for the practice and fun of it. Coils of this type may be purchased which are made especially for radio use, but an ordinary spark-coil with the contact-breaker screwed or fastened down will answer every purpose. The same type of coil, using only the secondary winding, may be successfully employed as a choke-coil, as shown in Fig. 60, N.

MR. SUN

"Hello, Clouds," said Mr. Sun. "Hello, Mr. Sun," said the Clouds. "They say I'm drawing water," said Mr. Sun, "but it's really not so. I'm not one to draw water in buckets or any other way."

"Ah, no, folks say that, but it's not really so. I look as though I were drawing water perhaps, but I'm only fooling them, ha, ha!" And Mr. Sun laughed a gay and merry laugh.

"Well," said the Clouds, "we were planning a party today. We thought perhaps you might come to it, Mr. Sun."

"Where is it going to be?" asked Mr. Sun. "You know if it is to be down on the earth I couldn't accept. 'I'd like to accept, but I couldn't. Of course I could send the Ray children and the Sunbeam grandchildren down, but I mustn't leave my sky home.'"

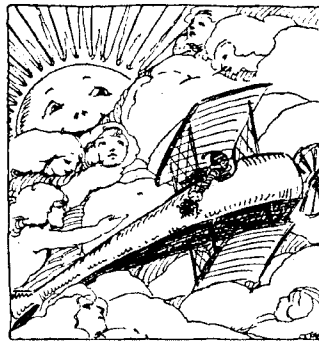

"No, no," said the Clouds, "of course not."

"I can shine down on an earth party—but you know how it is. Clouds. I'm a regular home-body. I don't like to leave my sky home."

"I've always been a home body, interested in other things it is true, but caring mostly for my home."

"You have never heard it said of Mr. Sun that he was a gadabout."

on others, but he stays right where he should stay."

"He doesn't go peering around curtains and wondering what his neighbors are up to now."

"But about this party? Is it to be in the sky?"

"Yes, indeed," said the Clouds. "You know we can go near the tops of the mountains but we couldn't go down on the earth."

"What would the Clouds do down on the earth? Why they would be lost in all the excitement and they wouldn't know how to get along."

"Clouds haven't legs and feet and legs and feet are most important if one is living on the earth."

"True, true," said Mr. Sun. "Our party is to be in honor of Miss Rose Cloud who is having a coming-out, you see."

"I don't quite," said Mr. Sun, with a puzzled look on his face.

"Well, we've heard from the Breeze Brothers that when little girls become young ladies they 'came out,' or they began 'going out.'"

"We don't mean such as coming out of cocoons or anything of that sort," the Clouds continued.

"No, we mean that they begin going to grown-up parties and things of that sort."

"So we're having a coming-out party for Miss Rose Cloud. It is true she has been out before, but then you know in the sky we're not fussy about such little things. We've lived too long to be fussy about trifles."

"Will you come to our party, Mr. Sun?"

"With the greatest of pleasure," said Mr. Sun.

"Ah, we rejoice to have your acceptance," said the Clouds, and looked gayer and lovelier than ever.

"Dear me, dear me, what is this?" exclaimed the Clouds suddenly.

Up in an airship came Billie Brownie.

"I've heard there was a coming-out party for Miss Rose Cloud today," he said breathlessly, "and I brought a bunch of rare spring flowers to her."

The flowers were bluebells or Lung-worts. They were of great clusters of purplish-blush flowers and were just as lovely as they could be.

FUNERAL BEARERS ON STRIKE

Incident That Enlightened British Public Concerning Profession About Which Little is Known.

The strike of funeral bearers in Hull calls attention to a profession of which comparatively little is known.

People are apt to look upon the somber figures who walk beside the hearse and carry the coffin to the graveside as simply a part of the undertaker's outfit, but in reality these men are a profession to themselves. Usually they are small tradesmen, writes a correspondent, or out of work, ready to earn a few shillings in this way. Every undertaker has his own little band who can be relied upon to come whenever a funeral is on. Generally the undertaker provides the tall hats, a fact which a counts for the grotesque fitting of some of the hats, but the black suit must be provided or borrowed by the man himself. The fee varies from 75 cents to $1.25, according to the district, and there are men who can make $5 a week and upwards out of this line. At Hull the fee has been $1.25. Now the undertakers wish to drop it to $1 a funeral, and hence the strike of the bearers.—Manchester Guardian.

Grayling board of trade is putting out three thousand of the Northern Michigan Resort folders on which they are advertising Grayling and free camping grounds on Lake Margrethe formerly Portage Lake.

The Development bureau is receiving some excellent samples of alfalfa but needs much more. Samples of all grasses and grains in the straw, are very acceptable. Farmers having anything in this line good or above the average, will render service by sending samples to the Development bureau at Gray City. All material should be cut a little before ripe and dried in the shade.

Two hundred cards 11 by 21 inches similar to the blotters in advertising Eastern Michigan are being used in the subcommittee of Detroit for the Huron Shore Tourist association by the Michigan Street Car Advertising company. Similar cards are to be placed in passenger stations on the railroad.

One and a quarter million pounds of alfalfa acid has been recently added to Michigan for agricultural purposes.

One thousand pounds is the maximum amount allowed to a farmer. The price in cartridge form is about 12 cents per pound. Car load lots only are shipped but the railroads recently provided a stop over in transit rate which makes the car order no hardship. Interested farmers should get in touch with their county agricultural agents at once. Last year north-eastern Michigan secured only a part of the amount allotted to the state.

Some places may brag of clover, but if anyone can find more clover and a finer lot of it than was seen last week on a trip from Gaylord to Alpena, he will "go some." Talk about "Cloverland" no place could surpass the beautiful fields of alfalfa, June and sweet clover seen on this trip. The hay crops through this section must be immense.

The Prescott sale of short horn cattle held at the Prescott & Sons ranch last week was well attended, and while the prices were not so high as they should have been yet from other angles the sale was worth much to northeastern Michigan. First, buyers from the outside were acquainted with our fine grazing and farming lands. They also had the opportunity of seeing the remainder of the large herd of cattle and could see the uniform excellent quality of this nationally famed herd.

Second, the majority of the animals were sold to Michigan people. One of the highest priced females stays in northeastern Michigan having been purchased by W. B. Piper of East Tawas.

The sale is to be an annual event with the Prescotts and is to be hoped that it will continue to be held at the farm, the same as this year, and not in Chicago as was the case last year even though the prices at the latter place might run some higher.

MAN WANTED. I have 280 acres south side of Main Street near North Branch to be developed for summer home. Under brush cleaned out, healthy trees left standing. Permanent position for married man who will appreciate good opportunity. Will build living quarters, finance reasonable cattle proposition and divide profits and will pay $50.00 per month salary. Applicant must furnish recommendations from 3 reputable citizens of Grayling or vicinity. N. C. Cotabish, Lakewood, O. 6-29-3.

THE HOME OF THE SOUL. In olden times, it was believed that the seat of the soul was the stomach, most likely for the reason that a man when his stomach is out of order, for the cure of ordinary stomach troubles, there is nothing quite so prompt and satisfactory as Chamberlain's Tablets. They strengthen the stomach and enable it to perform its functions naturally. Give them a trial. They only cost a quarter.

COME TO GRAYLING AUGUST 5TH

BIG PICNIC AND FIELD DAY PROGRAM BEING ARRANGED.

Auto Parade, Ball Game, Sports, Picnic Dinners, Music and Fun for all.

Some of our business men believed that it was about time that we had some kind of celebration so a few got together and decided that upon Saturday August 5, we would have a big celebration, one that would make everyone within a radius of a hundred miles, sit up and take notice.

It is just going to be a gigantic picnic and field day, where every family can join in and have the time of their lives. R. D. Connine has offered his pretty grove at the end of Michigan avenue for the use of picnickers, where they can prepare and eat their meals, amidst clean, cool and comfortable surroundings.

Besides there is going to be an auto parade and every auto within reaching distance is invited to get into it. Geo. Burke, Ford agent, is already claiming that there will be more Ford cars in the parade than all the other makes combined. You are going to have a chance to look 'em all over and, believe us, there are a lot of handsome cars in this vicinity this year. Of course they will be decorated, and good substantial prizes are going to be offered for the best ones.

Arrangements are being made for a bang-up good ball game for those who enjoy that sport. There will be good sports, good music, jolly crowds and no limit of fun. Yes, and dancing too if desired. Valuable prizes will be offered for the winners of contests by local business men.

The executive committee is made up of Holger F. Peterson, George Burke, Anthony Nelson, R. D. Connine and Mayor C. A. Canfield. P. L. Brown will be marshal of the day. Watch for announcements of further particulars.

INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT N. E. MICHIGAN.

Twenty thousand blotters advertising Eastern Michigan as a vacation district are being sent out by members of the Northeastern Michigan Development bureau and the Huron Shore Tourist association. They are being sent out in the form of a letter, and are being supplied by the latter association.

WEIGHING AND MEASURING PUPILS NOT A FAD BUT HAS PRACTICAL VALUE.

Quite a furor has been aroused in Michigan, as elsewhere, by recent articles in The Outlook in which Mr. C. K. Taylor asserted that weighing and measuring school children and grading them physically on that basis was a delusion. Mr. Taylor asserted that some children are naturally underweight and some are naturally overweight. He claimed therefore that these tests had no value, and as a result much work in this line stood to be discarded.

It is of course true, declares the Michigan Tuberculosis Association, that some children are naturally underweight and some are naturally overweight and that hence the weight and height test is not an absolute index to good or bad health. But the tests have a tremendous value. The ideal way would be to have an adequate health examination of all school pupils, taking each individual case separately; but under present conditions that is not possible. There are very few schools where there is provision for such an examination, and weighing and measuring pupils is the next best thing, for the present.

This system at least shows roughly which pupils need a physical examination most. The Detroit Department of health thinks that about ten per cent would fall in this group, and the emphasis of the school physician can then be concentrated on them.

The system is inadequate, but it is better than nothing. What all persons who are interested in the health of the coming generation should work for is an adequate system of medical examination in the schools. But till that comes, the other test has great practical value.

ONE DOLLAR SAVED REPRESENTS TEN DOLLARS EARNED.

The average man does not save to exceed ten per cent of his earnings. He must spend nine dollars in living expenses for every dollar saved. That being the case he can not be too careful about unnecessary expenses. Very often a few cents properly invested, like buying seeds for his garden, will save several dollars outlay later on. It is the same in buying Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy. It costs but a few cents, and a bottle of it in the house often saves a doctor's bill of several dollars.

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

Attention Ford Owners!

Ford parts, like almost everything else worth while, are counterfeited. Imitation parts are manufactured to SELL at the highest possible rate of profit and the grades of steel used are consequently not the same high quality, specially heat-treated alloy steels specified in Ford formulas for the manufacture of GENUINE FORD PARTS.

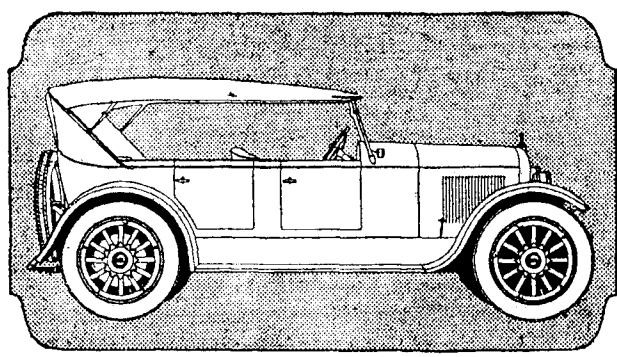

Don't be misled—Insist upon GENUINE FORD PARTS made by the Ford Motor Company. By so doing you will get from 35 to 100 per cent more wear from them, and you will pay the lowest possible cost—the same everywhere.

Earl motor cars are built in three Earl plants

Because the Earl is manufactured—not merely assembled—in three big Earl plants at Jackson, Michigan, its visible beauty, comfort and road performance cannot be matched in any other car of its wheel base or price. Its economy is unusual for a motor car of any size.

Only one manufacturing profit goes into its cost. That's why you are able to buy such beauty and comfort, with the Earl's ability to go anywhere your road leads, at the notably low price of $1095.

The Earl factory builds into every Earl the endurance and quality which make its economy, riding ease and performance so remarkable.

Earl values are outstanding. You can check them for yourself today. Come in and study this great car feature by feature, from drum-type head and cowl lamps to 56-inch rear springs. Let us give you a demonstration. Take the wheel yourself. Make all your own tests.

Thru the generosity of R. D. Conine, his grove located at the end of Michigan avenue, sometimes called Leece's grove, has been placed at the service of the public for a free camping ground for tourists. This is a very pretty grove with the East Branch river running thru it, is conveniently located and a charming spot. The Board of Trade will have it nicely trimmed up, put in well and pump, lavatories, build brick ovens for the campers and in general make it comfortable for any who desire to pitch their tent in that place. And it will be available for picnics, etc. The business men of Grayling surely appreciate the generosity of Mr. Conine in this matter.

Michigan Happenings

Venice park, pretty little summering district, on Lake Orion, soon will be connected with the mainland with a substantial road, suitable for motor traffic which the popular park warrants. In years past, boats were used for transportation, and, as the population grew, it became an inconvenience. Petition after petition, sent to the Orion council for installation of lights and construction of a road were followed only by the supplying of lights. Blasting for the road was started, but the work was allowed to lapse, until the agitation again was started this year with success.

Thrown under the wheels of the truck he was driving in a freak motor crash, Oliver W. Reick, 12 years old, of Utica, Mich., was killed instantly. The crash happened, it is said, when a truck driven by Gerald Cheeseman, of 1718 Parker avenue, Detroit, passed Reick's truck, the rear wheel hitting the front one on the other machine. Cheeseman, officers say, did not stop, and he finally was apprehended by Deputy Harry Lumley, of Utica, half an hour later.

Fire did $100,000 damage in the Battle Creek business district, chiefly to the block between Jefferson avenue and McCamly street, on West Main street, occupied entirely by the Brockett Hardware company. The majestic theater, adjoining, was damaged by flames, the Newark shoe store by water and smoke, and adjacent stores by smoke. The smoke was so dense it entered stores for a half block on either side.

Miss Gladys McCarthy, a student at the Michigan State Normal College, Ypsilanti, employed during the summer as a life guard at the Muskegon municipal bathing beach, saved two girls from drowning there. One girl, seized with cramps, grabbed her companion and both went down in 15 feet of water. Miss McCarthy, an expert swimmer, dived and brought up both girls and swam with them to shore.

The University of Michigan's hope of establishing a two-year course in aeronautics as part of the R. O. T. C. work offered at Ann Arbor was blasted by word from the headquarters of the Sixth Army corps, Chicago, declaring that it would not be possible this year. The regents granted a petition which requested the course, at their last meeting.

Will Davis, 59 years old, a Negro laborer, of Monroe, was arrested by Sheriff Gessner, charged with having stabbed Whitbee Bernard, 23 years old, another Negro, with a knife through the right chest. The affray was a result of a quarrel at a moonshine party. It is alleged. Small hopes are held for Bernard's recovery.

Charged with bigamy, Frank Gilman, bakery foreman, arrested at Boston and brought to the county jail at Monroe by Sheriff Frank Gessner, pleaded guilty before Justice Charles Hoyt, and was bound over to the circuit court under $2,000 bail.

Her clothes fired by a kerosene stove, Mrs. J. S. Mudge, 70 years old, wife of the owner of Seven Islands, near Grand Lodge, died from the burns. She leaves her husband and one daughter, Harriet.

Ruth, 3-year-old daughter of Rev. William E. Rasmussen, of Stanton, was badly burned while playing with firecrackers. Her mother burned her own hands in the attempt to extinguish the flames.

After an hour's battle with two big chicken hawks in a marsh south of Battle Creek, Mr. and Mrs. John Fleming, of that city, were forced to run for their lives. They were both injured.

Alfred Hart, 15 years old, was drowned at Portage lake, on the northern boundary of Washtenaw county. The lad was in swimming.

The Calhoun county board of supervisors has appropriated $9,000 to eradicate tuberculosis among cattle in the county and a vigorous campaign is to be waged against the disease.

The body of Clifford Althouse, fireman on the steamer Omar D. Conger, wrecked in Black river at Fort Huron March 15, as the result of an interior explosion, was found floating under the Black river bridge July 5. The bodies of the four victims are now accounted for.

A decrease of $5,637,115 was shown in the total assessed valuation of Genesee county by the commission on equalization and footings of the rolls in a report to the board of supervisors. The board adopted the report.

Since last October Bert Graham, a merchant in the suburbs of Muskegon, has slept in his store, armed with a revolver and shotgun, awaiting the return of the burglar who twice robbed his place. The burglar returned a few days ago and as he raised the window Graham fired the shotgun in the dark. It tore a part of the right hand of William Taylor, 21 years old, who says his home was at Sault Ste. Marie. He gave himself up.

Clare county board of supervisors has adopted a resolution opposing creation of a state drainage department. A resolution was also adopted to petition the state department of conservation for the opening of the season for killing rabbits with no restrictions. This action was endorsed by Deputy Game Warden Pettit and Briggs and the Clare County Sportsman's Club.

William Morgan, Calhoun county farmer, is in serious condition from burns and bruises suffered when a team of horses he was attempting to save from his burning barn became panic stricken and kicked him into the flames. He crawled from the blazing building, almost suffocated. Both horses perished in the fire, damage from which was estimated at $10,000.

Decision was reached by the board of supervisors of Genesee county to make county prisoners work on the roads July 6, at which time the county's contract with the Detroit house of correction, for caring for short term prisoners, expired. Hereafter prisoners sentenced from 65 to 90 days will be sent to the county jail. Those formerly were sentenced to Detroit.

Although he had only 16 days more of his probationary period to serve, Charles Enders, 28 years old, of Grand Rapids, has been returned to the state reformatory at Jonia, because he is said to have stolen a watch from a restaurant proprietor. Enders was paroled from the reformatory after having served some time on a large city charge.

The assessed valuation of Owosso was increased from $10,300,000 to more than $12,000,000 by the equalization adopted by the Shiawassee county board of supervisors. The valuation of the county was increased only $700,000. At the same time valuation of Corunna was increased from $283,620 to $1,142,644.

So rapidly are bounty orders on rats, hawks, woodchucks and other obnoxious birds and animals coming in to the Lenawee county treasurer, the latter has been given permission by the board of supervisors to borrow $10,000 if necessary to meet the obligations.

Twelve million dollars has been sliced from Oakland county's valuation by the equalization board. The new valuation is $127,301,477. Of this $105,689,563 is real estate, and $18,611,912 is personal property. Last year's valuation was $139,613,081.

Two or three applicants are in the field for the postmasterships at both Corunna and Bancroft, which will become vacant this fall. An examination will be held July 15.

TUTTLE SCORES SHERIFF'S OFFICE

JUDGE DENOUNCES WAYNE DEPUTIES CONVICTED AS BOOT-LEGGERS.

HEAVY SENTENCES ARE IMPOSED

Two of the Deputy Sheriffs Given Four Years in Penitentiary and $20,000 Fines.

Detroit—In what court officials and attaches declared was the most scathing arraignment ever uttered from the bench of a federal court in Michigan, Judge Arthur J. Tuttle, in the United States court scoured three deputy sheriffs who had just been convicted by a jury of violating the prohibition law, and pilloried the sheriff's office of Wayne county as "crooked" and as an "obstructor of justice."

"You men are so crooked that you are a disgrace to yourselves, to manhood and to Wayne county," Judge Tuttle told Deputy Sheriffs James Baker, William Parmenter and Max Corrigan when he called them before him for sentence.

Then he pronounced sentence as follows: David Baker, four years in the federal penitentiary and $20,000 fine. William Parmenter, four years in the federal penitentiary and $20,000 fine. Max Corrigan, three years in the federal penitentiary and $3,000 fine. James Quick, four years in the federal penitentiary and $4,000 fine. Henry Rives, one year in the Detroit house of correction. Jess Flowers, agent for the rum runners, one year in the Detroit house of correction. Joseph Doffinos, nine months in the Detroit house of correction.

The jury in reporting the conviction of Deputy Sheriffs Baker, Corrigan and Parmenter and of Flowers and Doffinos, acquitted Fred Ackley, formerly a deputy sheriff and now a constable in Wyandotte, and Henry Plovias, a farmer, on whose farm the liquor concerned in the case was "cached" for a time.

Just before passing sentence on the three deputies, Judge Tuttle declared that he regarded it as peculiarly deplorable that "the very office that should have kicked you crooks out has, instead, rallied to your support while you have been on trial in this court, from the moment the trial opened until this moment."

"I cannot conceive that anyone would believe you to be innocent, and it would be entirely consistent with the past conduct of the sheriff's office to permit you to continue as deputy sheriffs after you have been duly received at the federal penitentiary where I shall consign you when I get around to it."

The crime for which Deputy Sheriffs Baker, Parmenter and Corrigan and Quick, Rives, Flowers and Doffinos were convicted, took place May 27, 1920.

Through testimony brought out in the three weeks of the trial, it was established that the seven convicted defendants had engaged with Alfred J. Woods, of Amherstburg, Canada, wealthy liquor dealer, to bring 1,600 quarts of whiskey to the Detroit shore, to be sold at $90 a case.

FORD OFFERS TO LEASE ROAD

Auto Manufacturer Acts to Prevent Coal Shortage in Detroit.

Detroit—Henry Ford has moved to prevent any danger of the mine or railroad strikes interfering with Detroit industries by slowing up the movement of coal into the city. He has offered to lease the trunk division of the Louisville & Nashville railroad between Hanger Fork and Corbin, Ky., and from Corbin to Cincinnati.

Mr. Ford now has access to Cincinnati with his Detroit, Toledo & Ironroad. The division of the Louisville & Nashville road he seeks to lease would give him a direct route to the coal fields.

FANATIC FASTS FOR 53 DAYS

Religious Eccentric Says He Must Show Way to Redemption.

Shade, Kentucky—Fifty-three days of fasting was credited to William Rice, a religious eccentric, of Nada, near here. Rice declared he was told in a vision that he must show his neighbors they must sacrifice to be redeemed. The fast began when Rice was confined in jail for vagrancy and after nine days there was continued at his home. Rice's fast has attracted widespread attention in this part of Kentucky. His condition is described as very weak, but he is able to walk.

War Veterans Criticize Dr. Sawyer

San Francisco—Much of the blame for government shortcomings in hospitalization work for World War veterans should be placed on Brig. General Charles E. Sawyer. President Harding's physician, Humphrey Sullivan, of St. Louis, representing National Commander MacNider of the American Legion, declared in an address on behalf of the American Legion before the convention of American Disabled War Veterans of the world.

Wisconsin Democrats Name Woman Milwaukee—Mrs. Ben C. Hooper, of Oakshosh, president of the Wisconsin League of Women Voters, as the Democratic nominee for United States Senator, will lead the Democrats of Wisconsin into the state elections Nov. 7, the first woman representative on a party ticket in this state and the second woman nominee for the Senate in the nation. The Democratic party convention has unanimously endorsed Mrs. Hooper, and party leaders secured their support to her candidacy.

IRISH REPUBLICAN LEADER SAYS PACT IS TORN UP

EAMONN DE VALERA

London—Eamonn de Valera, Irish republican leader, in a message addressed to the people of the United States, declares the pact between the Irish parties has been torn up, that civil war has broken out, that the Dail Eireann is not allowed to meet and that the provisional government has assumed a military dictatorship, supported by British big guns.

CHECK RAISER NOT PUNISHED

Judge Lenient Because Youth Spent Money for Dying Wife.

Los Angeles—William Strickler, 19, whose wife and baby were sick, got a day's work, and a check for $4 in payment.

He put a cypher after the figure four and cashed the check, and spent the $4 on his family.

Strickler admitted everything to Judge Sidney N. Reeve, of the superior court, and the public defender told how, a few days later, Strickler's wife had died, and how Strickler, at her grave with his four-month-old baby in his arms, was arrested, handcuffed, and taken to jail.

Then the public defender asked probation for Strickler.

"Probation!" thundered the court. "Why, the case is dismissed."

SAYS 1925 MAY SEE TIMES END

Zion Chief Declares Wicked World Is Ripe for Sickle.

Chicago—Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of Zion, the Holy City north of Chicago, is beset with fears that the world may come to an end in 1925. Voliva is the genial scientist who insists the world is flat and square, presumably supported by four legs or poles. He says that things are getting mighty wacky as the result of the terrific pace people are traveling. "I personally know that the Christian dispensation is closing and there is a universal expectation of a worldwide catastrophe. The year 1925 may easily see the end of time."

4 AMENDMENTS LACK SIGNERS

Proposed Charges Will Not Be Voted Upon Next Election.

Lansing—Failure of the backers of four constitutional amendments to file the required 105,000 signatures, required to place them on the ballot by 5 o'clock July 6, barred the proposed amendments from submission to the voters at the coming state election.

The four amendments, for which petitions have been in circulation for several months, include the legislative apportionment amendment, the parochial school amendment, that which would have provided for appointment of the superintendent of public instruction by the state board of education, and the county home-rule amendment.

FEDERAL ROAD AID CONTINUED

$50,000,000 Appropriation Recently Authorized Now Available.

Washington—Approximately $100,000,000 will be spent for good road construction throughout the country during the fiscal year which began July 1. This will be brought about by the continuation of federal aid for roads under recent authorization of an appropriation of "most $50,000,000 for distribution among the states. Under the conditions each state must match the sum allotted to it."

Revenue Men Seize Rum Shop.

Washington—More than 500 Negro excursionists were thrown into a fear state of panic when police and revenue officers seized the Madison Hall, a 400-foot steamer plying between Washington and a Potomac river resort, after discovery of what was said to be a large quantity of liquor aboard. Ottaway Holmes, Negro owner of the steamer, which was valued at $100,000, was arrested on a charge of illegal possession and selling of liquor.

Couple Dies in Love Pact.

St. Louis—Gilbert Salzman, 20, and Edna, his 17-year-old bride of five weeks, are dead as the result of a love pact. The young couple took poison while seated in their automobile. The girl collapsed immediately, but the husband had strength to stagger into a fire house nearby, and tell what they had done. When firemen attempted to give Salzman milk as an antidote to the poison, he refused to take it and tried to seize the pistol of one of the men. "I want to die" he said.

Says Cure Epilepsy By Fasting.

Los Angeles—Epilepsy may be cured by fasting, according to a theory of Dr. Hugh Conklin, addressing the twenty-third convention of the American Osteopathic Association here. Epilepsy, he said, is caused by improper functioning of certain glands in the bowels. By fasting a patient for 22 days, permitting the patient to take only water, a cure may be effected, he said.

Florida Has "Rolling Courts"

Jacksonville, Fla.—Florida's first "rolling courts" are in action on Atlantic boulevard between Jacksonville and the beaches. Justices of the peace and their bailiffs in the districts traversed by the boulevard in touring cars were constantly on patrol, and dozens of deputies on motorcycles and in automobiles were ready to pounce upon any driver who endangered traffic.

What Was Sheep To Do?

Lorain, O.—On the one hand was his family insisting on fresh mutton for dinner, said mutton to be sliced from John Korvich's half of a sheep. On the other hand was his neighbor, who owned the other half of the sheep. Insisting his family was going to wait until fall for lamb chops. What was Korvich to do? "I killed my half of the sheep and his half died," Korvich told police who arrested him. He was fined $1 and costs.

Four Brothers Marry 3 Sisters.

St. Louis, Mo.—Following the marriage here of Robert Pyatt, aged 26, and Mrs. Edna Pyatt, his brother Edward's widow, it was learned that two of the Pyatt boys had married three sisters. The three sisters' maiden name was Harris and they are second cousins to the Pyatt boys. All reside in Cherryville, Mo. Mrs. Robert Pyatt said she could not explain the intermarrying of the families, except it was "sort of a habit."

Gets Invitation After 29 Years.

Dubuque, Ia.—After 29 years of waiting, A. T. E. Haines, former Cairo, Ill., man, now living in St. Louis, has received an invitation to a party from a sweetheart of long ago, who, at that time, lived in Smithland, Ky. The invitation was neatly folded and sealed, having arrived at Cairo, March 23, 1893, when Haines was in knee breeches. The letter lay hidden since the crack of an old-fashioned desk in the Cairo postoffice undelivered for three decades.

One Killed in "Sham" Battle.

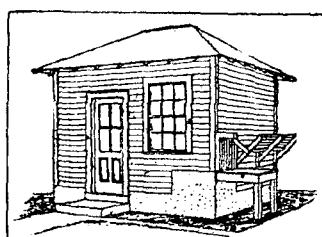

Pittsburgh, Kansas—One spectator was killed and two wounded by steel jacketed bullets mysteriously fired during a sham battle between members of the American Legion at a Fourth of July celebration. Glenn Harry, 18 years old, is dead. Mrs. Charles Dobay and Edward O'Connor, a policeman, were wounded. All three were standing together in the crowd, which gave rise to the theory that the shots were aimed at someone marked for death. Legion men declared their rifles had fired only blanks.

DAIRY POINTS

BEST SITE FOR MILK HOUSE

Not Good Plan to Get Them Too Near Cow Barn—Must Be Clean, Airtight and Duct-Proof.

Milk houses must be clean, airtight, dust-proof places, free from all insects and bad odors. They should not open directly into the barn, but it is equally injudicious to build them a very great distance away from the barn. Prompt removal and quick cooling are the main points to observe in handling milk. Put the milk house on a well-drained spot and away from rubbish heaps, manure piles and fly-breeding places. The outer walls, if of concrete, should be from 6 to 8 inches thick; if of brick,

Milk House Suitable for a Ten to Twenty-Cow Dairy.

9 inches; if of tile, 8 inches; if of stone, 14 to 18 inches; and if of wood frame, 6 inches.

Authorities say that particular care should be exercised in constructing milk house floors. Concrete is by far the best material for this purpose, as it resists moisture, decay and wear. Concrete floors should be built of a base made up of one part cement, three parts sharp, clean sand and five parts stone. This base should be about five inches thick and should be covered with a top coat one inch thick made by mixing one part cement and two parts sand. The top coat should be troweled hard and smooth.

SAFEGUARDING MILK SUPPLY

Form of Ordinance Drawn to Guide Communities in Framing Practicable Law.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In properly safeguarding the milk supply of a community, the enactment of a suitable and enforceable law is usually the first step, according to a reprint of department bulletin 385, "A Guide for Formulating a Milk Ordinance," just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. Milk, in its composition and natural qualities, is a most useful and acceptable food, but may acquire one or another of insidious taints on its way from the cow to the consumer, and it is not always possible to require either producers or distributors to observe all the precautions which science has shown to be necessary, unless there is a law to back them up.

The public and officials of a city realizing this need may sometimes, in their zeal to make the new regulations strict enough, go too far and insert provisions that cannot readily be enforced or administered. Even health department officials may not be familiar with all phases of this subject, unless they have already been engaged in the enforcement of milk regulations; and in any case, whether the city is just starting milk regulation or is revising its ordinances to bring them up to date, it is desirable to take advantage of the experience of other communities.

The United States Department of Agriculture has drawn up a form of ordinance to guide communities in framing a finished and practicable law. Copies of the bulletin may be had free upon application to the department at Washington, D. C.

IRREGULAR MILKING IS BAD

Not Only Lessens Output, but Tends to Disturb Functional Activity of Animal.

Early milking morning or evening one day and later milking morning or evening another day not only lessens the output of milk, but tends to disturb functional activity and prevents a maximum yield for the lactation period.

MIXTURE FOR YOUNG CALVES

Ground Corn, Oats, Bran and Oilmeal Is Recommended for Those Under Six Months.

For calves under six months old in good condition and having a soft, melowy hide, a mixture of 30 pounds ground corn, 30 pounds ground oats, 30 pounds bran and 10 pounds oilmeal, fed three to five pounds daily, is recommended.

Hard to Get Flow Back.

If a cow's milk flow is allowed to go down through neglect, poor feed or any other cause, it is almost impossible to get the flow back up to the first mark.

Milk Only Good Cows.

Milk more cows—but by all that's sensible, milk only good cows.

Cause of Stringy Milk.

Stringy milk does not occur frequently unless the cows drink water from stagnant pools, etc.

Deserves Careful Selection.

Outranked only by wheat as human food, the potato deserves careful seed selection to get as good stock as possible.

Fight Crop Pests.

Intelligence is half the fight against crop pests. Persistence is the other half.

Soil for Soy Beans.

Soy beans have no special soil requirements, and do well on any type of soil.

MARKET REPORT

FURNISHED BY U. S. BUREAU OF MARKETS, WASHINGTON, D. C.

(For the week ending July 6, 1923.)

Wheat prices declined early in week on improved crop outlook, but recovered on favorable weather conditions on the 5th. Minneapolis July wheat showed pronounced weakness and led decline. Corn had independent strength with leading elevator interest in buying side. For the week, Chicago September wheat dropped 1 1/2 cts. Chicago September corn advanced 1/2 ct. On the 5th the undertone of the market was weak, but short covering developed on break and prices rallied at close. Favorable weather conditions continue the most important factors affecting the market. Closing central contract prices by weakness in continental exchange.

Closing prices in Chicago cash market: No. 2 hard winter wheat $1.16, No. 2 mixed corn $1.25, yellow corn $1.20, No. 2 white oats $1.25. Average farm prices: No. 2 mixed corn $1.25, No. 2 hard winter wheat $1.16, No. 2 hard winter wheat in central Kansas $1.16. Closing futures prices: Chicago September wheat $1.14 1/2, Chicago September corn $1.25, Minneapolis September wheat $1.21 1/2, Kansas City September wheat $1.19 1/2, yellow corn $1.20, No. 2 white oats $1.25.

Dairy Products. Butter markets unsettled during the week and closed at $18.00. Prices were reached during the export demand was influenced by the market. Closing prices, 92 score butter: New York $1.25, Chicago $1.25, Philadelphia and Boston.

Feed. Market inactive. Country buying very light. Wheat feeds and high protein feeds in ample supply. Prices in steady unchanged. Corn feeds weaker. Alfalfa and clover hay, demand limited. Stocks and market generally unchanged.

Quoted July 5: Bran, $2.25; Philadelphia, $1.75; Kansas City, $1.75; Chicago, $1.

CHAPTER XIII.

—11—

The Owner of the Watch.
"So they got word to you?" Constance exclaimed. "Oh, no—of course they couldn't have done that! They've hardly got my letter yet."

"Four letters?" Alan asked.
"I wrote to Blue Rapids," she explained. "Some things came—they went to me. Some things of Uncle Benny's which were meant for you instead of me."

"You mean you've heard from him?"

"No—not that."

"What things, Miss Sherrill?"

"A watch of his and some coins and a ring." She did not explain the significance of those things, and he could not tell from her mere enumeration of them and without seeing them that they furnished proof that his father was dead. She could not inform him of that, she felt, just here and now.

"I'll tell you about that later. You—you were coming to Harbor Point to see us?"

He colored. "I'm afraid not. I got as near as this to you because there is a man—an Indian—I have to see."

"An Indian! What is his name? You see, I know quite a lot of them."

"To Papa."

She shook her head. "No; I don't know him."

She found a spot where the moss was covered with dry pine needles and sat down upon the ground.

"Sit down," she invited. "I want you to tell me what you have been doing."

"I've been on the boats." He dropped down upon the moss beside her.

"Until yesterday I was a not very highly honored member of the crew of the package freighter Osceola. I left her at Frankfort and came up here."

"Is Wassaquam with you?"

"He wasn't on the Osceola; but he was with me at Astor. Now, I believe, he has gone back to his own people—to Middle Village."

"You mean you've been looking for Mr. Corvet in that way?"

"Not exactly that. He hesitated; but he could see no reason for not telling what he had been doing. He had not so much blundered from her and her father what he had found in Bonifant Corvet's house; rather, he had refrained from mentioning it in his notes to them when he left Chicago because he had thought that the lists would lead to an immediate explanation; they had not led to that, but only to a suggestion, indefinite yet. He had known that, if his search finally developed nothing more than it had, he must at last consult Sherrill and get Sherrill's aid."

"We found some writing, Miss Sherrill," he said. "In the house on Astor street that night after Luke came."

"What writing?"

He took the lists from his pocket and showed them to her. She separated and looked through the sheets and read the names written in the same hand that had written the directions upon the slip of paper that came to her four days before, with the things from Uncle Benny's pockets.

"My father had kept these very secret," she explained. "He had them hidden. Wassaquam knew where they were, and that night after Luke was dead and you had gone home, he gave them to me."

"After I had gone home? Henry went back to see you that night; he had said he was going back, and afterward I asked him, and he told me he had seen you again. Did you show him these?"

"He saw them—yes."

"So was there when Wassaquam showed you where they were?"

"Yes."

A little line deepened between her brows, and she sat thoughtful.

"So you have been going about seeing these people," she said. "What have you found out?"

"Nothing definite at all. None of them knew my father; they were only amazed to find that anyone in Chicago had known their names."

"In her feeling for him, she had laid her hand upon his arm; now her fingers tightened to sudden tenderness.

"What do you mean?" she asked.

"Oh, it is not definite yet—not clear."

"She felt the bitterness in his tone. "They have not any of them been able to make it wholly clear to me. It is like a record that has been blurred. These original names must have been written down by my father many years ago—many, most of those people, I think—are dead; some are nearly forgotten. The only thing that is fully plain is that in every case my inquiries have led me to those who have lost one, and sometimes more than one relative upon the lakes."

Constance thrilled to a vague horror. It was not anything to which she could give definite reason. His tone quite as much as what he said was its cause. His experience plainly had been faring him to bitterness against his father; and he did not know with certainty yet that his father was dead.

"You'll lunch with us, of course," she said to Alan, "and then go back with us to Harbor Point. It's a day's journey around the two bays; but we've a boat here."

He assented, and they went down to the water where the white and brown power yacht, with long graceful lines, lay solemnly in the sunlight. A little boat took them out over the shimmering, smooth surface to the ship; swells from a faraway freighter swept under the beautiful, furnished craft, causing it to roll lazily as they boarded it. A party of nearly a dozen men and girls with an older woman clapping them, lounged under the shade of an awning over the after deck. They greeted her gently and looked curiously at Alan as she introduced him.

"Have you worked on any of our boats?" she asked him, after luncheon had been finished, and the anchor of the ship had been raised.

A queer expression came upon his face. "I've thought it best not to do that, Miss Sherrill," he replied.

"Did not know why the next moment she should think of Henry."

The yacht was pushing swiftly, smoothly, with hardly a hum from its motors, north along the shore. He watched intently the rolling, wooded hills and the rugged little bays and inlets. His work and his investigations had not brought him to the neighborhood before, but she found that she did not have to name the places to him; he knew them from the charts.

"Grand Traverse Light," he said to her as a white tower showed upon their left. Then, leaving the shore, they pushed out across the wide mouth of the larger bay toward Little Traverse. He drew more silent as they approached it.

"It is up there, isn't it?" he asked, pointing, "that they hear the Drum?"

"Yes; how do you know the place?"

"I don't know it exactly; I want you to show me."

She pointed out to him the cove, dark, primed, blue in its contrast with the lighter green of the trees about it and the glistening white of the shingle and of the more distant sandbars. He leaned forward, staring at it, until the changed course of the yacht, as it swung about toward the entrance to the bay, obscured it.

"Sawing the ships made me feel that I belonged here on the lakes," he reminded her. "I have felt something—no recognition exactly, but something that was like the beginning of recognition—many times this summer when I saw certain places. It's like one of those dreams, you know, in which you are conscious of having had the same dream before. I feel that I ought to know this place."

They landed only a few hundred yards from the cottage. After bidding good-bye to her friends, they went up to it together through the trees. There was a small sun room, rather shut off from the rest of the house, to which she led him. Leaving him there, she ran upstairs to get the things.

She halted an instant beside the door, with the box in her hands, before she went back to him, thinking how to prepare him against the significance of these relics of his father. She need not prove him against the mere fact of his father's death; he had been beginning to believe that already; but these things must have far more meaning for him than merely that. She went in and put the box down upon the card table.

"The muller in the box was your father's," she told him. "He had it on the day he disappeared. The other things," her voice choked a little, "are the things he must have had in his pockets. They've been lying in water and sand—"

He gazed at her. "I understand," he said after an instant. "You mean that they prove his death."

She assented gently, without speaking. As he approached the box, she drew back from it and walked away into the next room. She slipped away and down there, pressing her hands together. He must be looking at the things now, unrolling the muller.

What would he be feeling as he saw them? Would he be glad, with that same gladness which had mingled with her own sorrow over Uncle Benny, that his father was gone—gone from his guilt and his fear and his disgrace? Or would he resent that death which thus left everything unexplained to him? He would be looking at the ring, that, at least, must bring more joy than grief to him. He would recognize that it must be his mother's wedding ring; if it told him that his mother must be dead, it would tell him that she had been married, and he believed that she was married!

Suddenly she heard him calling her. "Miss Sherrill!" his voice had a sharp thrill of excitement.

She hurried toward the sun room. She could see him through the doorway, bending over the card table with the things spread out upon its top in front of him.

"Yes."

He straightened; he was very pale. "Would you mind that my father had in his pocket all these things more than twenty years old?"

She ran and bent beside him over the coins. "Twenty years!" she repeated. She was making out the dates of the coins now herself; the markings were eroded, nearly gone in some instances, but in every case enough remained to make plain the date. "Eighteen-ninety—1894—1899," she made them out. Her voice hushed then. "What does it mean?" she whispered.

He turned over and re-examined the articles with hands suddenly steady. "There are two sets of things here," he concluded. "The muller and paper of directions—they belonged to my father. The other things—it isn't six months or less than six months that they've lain in sand and water to become worn like this; it's twenty years. My father can't have had these things; they were somewhere else, or some one else had them. He wrote his directions to that person—after June twelfth, he said, so it was before June twelfth he wrote it; but we can't tell how long before. It might have been in February, when he disappeared; it might have been any time after that. But if the directions were written so long ago, why weren't the things sent to you before this? Did he tell the person to have the things sent? Or was he to wait to get them? Or—was it the instructions to send them that he didn't have? Or, if he had the instructions, was he waiting to receive word when they were to be sent? You thought these things proved my father was dead. I think they prove he is alive! Oh, we must think this out!"

He paced up and down the room; she sank into a chair, watching him. "The first thing that we must do," he said suddenly, "is to find out about the watch. What is the 'phone number of the telephone office?"

She told him, and he went out to the telephone; she sprang up to follow him, but checked herself and merely waited until he came back.

"I've wired to Buffalo," he announced. "The Merchants' exchange, if it is still in existence, must have a record of the presentation of the watch."

"Then you'll stay here with us until an answer comes?"

"If we get a reply by tomorrow morning, I'll wait till then. If not, I'll ask you to forward it to me. I must see about the trains and get back to Frankfort. I can cross by boat from there to Manitowish—that will be quickest. We must begin there, by trying to find out who sent the package."

She helped him put the muller and the other articles into the box; she noticed that the wedding ring was no longer with them. He had taken that, then; it had meant to him all that she had known it must mean.

In the morning she was up very early; but Alan, the servants told her, had risen before she had and had gone out. The morning after the cool northern night, was chill. She slipped a sweater on and went out on the veranda, looking about for him. An Indian came lumbering about the hills and the bay; in it she heard a ship's bell strike twice; then another struck twice; then another—and another—and another. The haze thinned as the sun grew warmer, showing the placid water of the bay on which the ships stood double. She saw Alan returning, and knowing from the direction from which he came that he must have been to the telephone office, she ran to meet him.

"Was there an answer?" she inquired eagerly.

He took a yellow telegraph sheet from his pocket and held it for her to read.

"Watch presented Captain Caleb Stafford, master of propeller freighter Marvin Hale, for rescue of crew and passengers of sinking steamer Winnebago off Long Point, Lake Erie."

She was breathing quickly in her excitement. "Caleb Stafford?" she exclaimed. "Why, that was Captain Stafford of Stafford and himself! They owned the Miwaka!"

"Yes," Alan said.

A great change had come over him since last night; he was under emotion so strong that he seemed scarcely to dare speak lest it master him—a leaping, exultant impulse it was, which he fought to keep down.

"What is it, Alan?" she asked. "What is it about the Miwaka? You said you'd found some reference to it in Uncle Benny's house. What was it? What did you find there?"

"The man—"

Alan swallowed and steadied himself and repeated—"The man I met in the house that night mentioned it. He seemed to think I was a ghost that had haunted Mr. Corvet—the ghost from the Miwaka; or least he shouted out to me that I couldn't save the Miwaka!"

"Save the Miwaka! What do you mean, Alan? The Miwaka was lost with all her people—officers and crew—no one knows how or where!"

"All except the one for whom the Drum didn't beat!"

"What's that? Blood pricked in her cheeks. "What do you mean, Alan?"

"I don't know yet; but I think I'll soon find out."

"No; you can tell me more now. Alan. Surely you can. I must know. I have the right to know. Yesterday, I have before you found out about this, you knew things you weren't telling me—things about the people you'd been seeing. They'd all lost people on the lakes, you said; but you found out more than that."

"They'd all lost people on the Miwaka," he said. "All who could tell me where their people were lost; a few were like Jo Papo we saw yesterday, who knew only the year his father was lost; but the time always was the time that the Miwaka disappeared."

"Disappeared!" she repeated. Her veins were prickling cold. What did he know, what could any one know of the Miwaka, the ship of which nothing ever was heard except the beating of the Indian Drum? She tried to make him say more; but he looked away now down to the lake.

"The Chippewa must have come in early this morning," he said. "She's lying in the harbor; I saw her on my way to the telegraph office. If Mr. Spearman has come back with her, tell him I'm sorry I can't wait to see him."

"When are you going?"

"Now."

She offered to drive him to Petoskey, but he already had arranged for a man to take him to the train.

She went to her room after he was gone and spread out again on her bed the things she had found.

they were given to him in your presence. Why didn't you tell me about that?"

He straightened as if with anger. "Why should I? Because he thought that I should? What did he tell you about those lists?"

"Nothing—except that his father had kept them very secret; but he found out they were names of people who had relatives on the Miwaka!"

"What?"

Recalling how her blood had run when Alan told her that Henry's whiteness and the following suffusion of his face did not surprise her.

"I told that fellow long ago not to start stirring these matters up about Ben Corvet, and particularly I told him that he was not to bring any of it to you. It's not a thing that a man like Ben covered up for twenty years till it drove him crazy is sure not to be a thing for a girl to know. Let it alone, I tell you."

She stood flushed and perplexed, gazing at him. She never had seen him under stronger emotion.

"You misunderstood me once, Constance," he appealed. "You'll understand me now!"

She had been thinking about that injustice she had done him in her thought—about his chivalry to his partner and former benefactor, when Uncle Benny was still keeping his place among men. Was Henry now moved, in a way which she could not understand, by some other obligation to the man who long ago had aided him? Had Henry hazarded more than he had told her of the nature of the thing which, if she could guess it, would justify what he said?

She had made Alan promise to write her, if he was not to return, regarding what he learned; and a letter came to her on the fourth day from him in Manitowish. The post office employees had no recollection, he said, of the person who had mailed the package; it simply had been dropped by some one into the receptacle for mailing packages of that sort. Alan, however, was continuing his inquiries.

She wrote to him in reply; in lack of anything more important to tell him she related some of her activities and inquired about his. After she had written him thus twice, he replied, describing his life on the boats pleasantly and humorously; then, though she immediately replied, she did not hear from him again.

A new idea had seized Constance. Captain Caleb Stafford was named among the lost, of course; with him had perished his son, a boy of three. That was all that was said, and all that was to be learned of him, the boy.

Alan had been three then. This was wild, crazy speculation. "The ship was lost with all hands; and the Drum, believed in by the superstitions and the most ignorant, denied that. The Drum said that one soul had been saved. How could a child of three have been saved when strong men, to the last one, had perished? And, if he had been saved, he was Stafford's son. Why should Uncle Benny have sent him away and cared for him and then sent for him and, himself disappearing, leave all he had to—Stafford's son?"

Or was he Stafford's son? Her thought went back to the things which had been sent—the things from a man's pockets with a wedding ring among them. She had believed that the ring cleared the mother's name; might it in reality only more involve it? Why had it come back like this to the man by whom, perhaps, it had been given? Henry's words came again and again to Constance: "It's a queer concern you've got for Ben. Leave it alone, I tell you!"

He knew then something about Uncle Benny which might have brought on some terrible thing which Henry did not know but might guess? Constance went weak within. Uncle Benny's wife had left him, she remembered. Was it better, after all, to "leave it alone?"

A telegraph envelope addressed to her father was on the table in the hall. A servant told her the message had come an hour before, and that he had telephoned to Mr. Sherrill's office, but Mr. Sherrill was not in. There was no reason for her thinking that the message might be from Alan except his presence in her thoughts, but she went at once to the telephone and called her father. He was in now, and he directed her to open the message and read it to him.

"Have some one," she read aloud; she choked in her excitement at what came next—"Have some one who knew Mr. Corvet well enough to recognize him, even if greatly changed, meet Carberry Number 25 Manitowish Wednesday this week. Alan Conrad."

Her heart was beating fast. "Are you there?" she said into the phone.

"Yes."

"Whom shall you send?"

There was an instant's silence. "I shall go myself," her father said.

She hung up the receiver. Had Alan found Uncle Benny? He had found, apparently, some one whose resemblance to the picture she had showed him was marked enough to make him believe that person might be Benjamin Corvet; or he had heard of some one who, from the account he had received, he thought might be. She read again the words of the telegram, "even if greatly changed," and she felt startling and terrifying warning in the phrase.

Oldest United States Post Office.

Erected in 1768, the post office building at St. Augustine, Fla., is believed to be the oldest structure of the kind in the country. According to official records in the "Archives of the Indies," at Seville, Spain, the building was purchased by the king of Spain in 1604 from Gonzalo, Mendez, former governor of Florida, who erected it. The place was purchased from Mendez for $10,000 as a residence for Gov. Pedro de Yderra and his successor. In requesting that the purchase be made, Governor Yderra wrote the king that the house in which he lived was built over the sea, and was so cold and damp that two former governors had died in it.

NEGRO'S MEMORY A PUZZLE

Of Limited Educational Attainment, Colored Man Has Wonderful Fund of Useful Information.

Jim Gilmore, a negro aged fifty-six, who lives in the town of Greenville, Tex., is said by scientists who have examined him, to possess one of the most remarkable memories known. With apparently a small amount of educational training Gilmore is able to quote any verse in the Bible suggested to him. He answers any questions pertaining to the Civil war, the Spanish-American war and the late World war, giving dates of all outstanding historical events. He can name every station and water tank from San Francisco to New York on the principal transcontinental railroads.

There seems to be no limit to the amount of poetry Gilmore can quote. "The Sinking of the Titanic," numbering 40 verses, and "The World War From Beginning to End," in 60 verses and three parts, is another literary achievement of which he can boast. He has traveled extensively and possesses an excellent vocabulary for one of limited education.—Exchange.

WAS UNDER NO OBLIGATION

Transaction of Youthful Newspaper Proprietor Had Been on a Strictly Business Basis.

George developed a journalistic instinct at the early age of fifteen. With the consent of his father and some assistance from the same source he bought an "amateur printing outfit," and started the Kinkerville Monthly Journal, subscription price 50 cents a year, payable in advance.

"I suppose you call yourself the editor and proprietor of this office," remarked an envious young associate who dropped in at his "sanctum" in the basement of the paternal dwelling one day.

"Of course I do," responded the youthful journalist. "I don't owe a cent on it."

FarmBureau Notes

R. D. BAILEY
County Agricultural Agent

Back Again.

I spent all last week around Mt. Pleasant, Vassar and Frankenmuth, looking for Registered purebred Holstein bull calves, heifer calves and bred heifers.

I worked hard at it, too, and found a lot of choice bargains for our progressive farmers.

Holsteins By the Mile.

For miles and miles around Vassar and Frankenmuth, and in the country between it is full of beautiful Holstein stock, most of it being registered purebred.

Those Thrifty German Farmers.

That beautiful country is packed full of farms, practically all owned by people of German descent. They are a practical, thrifty, highly prosperous people. There are hundreds of these farm families there. They practically all have Holsteins. This ought to be a hint to us.

The Bull's the Thing.

I noticed that every farmer spoke with pride of the high breeding and high cost of the herd sire. We, too, ought to take more pride in that very thing. Their splendid animals showed that it pays to take pains with the head of the herd.

Found Some For You.

I hustled around, mile after mile, as if my life depended on it, and found some beautiful young bulls at $50, $75, $100 each. Why not sell one, or even two, of the poorer cows of your herd, and buy one of these fine young bulls with the money?

I promise you that it will be a benefit to you.

Wrote It Right Down.

When I found a bargain in bull half, heifer calf, or young heifer, I made a note of owner's name, address and price and age of the animal. Let me look over this list with you. Prices are within your reach. Investments like this will start a man on the road to prosperity.

Cow Manure Did It.

Mr. C. C. Conaull, of Mt. Pleasant, told me this: "When I took this farm fifteen years ago, I put the corn from 27 acres into a silo 12 ft. in diameter and 26 feet high. Nine years later I filled two silos like that with the corn from eleven acres. Cow manure from my dairy herd did it." Mr. Conaull has 50 cows—25 heifers, 25 calves, all purebred.

The more cows you keep, the more you can keep.

Who Will Be First?

Who will be first to send for one of the registered young animals that I found on my trip?

Took My Own Medicine.

I practice what I preach. I sent home, to my own farm, a beautiful heifer calf, and expect to send home a certain splendid bull calf that I have picked out.

Pluck Wins.

Pluck wins! It always wins! Though days be slow, and nights be dark, twixt days that come and go. Still, pluck will win! Its average is sure! He wins the most, who can the most endure! Who faces issues! He who never shirks! Who waits, and watches, and who always works.—Anon.

THE SAME EVERYWHERE.

The editor of Paisa Akhbar a newspaper of Lahore, India, says, "I have used Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy many times among my children and servants, for colic and diarrhoea and always found it effective."

ELDORADO NUGGETS.

Messrs Hall and Calvert of Howell, who spent a few days flailing on the Ausable, stopped for a short visit at the Webbs farm on their way home. Mrs. Leon Sursaw, who for the past year has been living at Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, returned to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Diffell to spend the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Diamond and children of South Bend, Ind., and Mrs. George Basing of Flint are the week's visitors at the home of the ladies mother, Mrs. Henry Hartman.

Fred Hartman and family and Violet Williams were East Jordan visitors over the Fourth.

Mrs. Edith Coykendall attended services at the Catholic church at Roscommon Sunday.

Howard Gibson of Sterling is assisting Mr. Crane with his farm work.

Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Dunham of Grayling were Saturday callers in the neighborhood.

Mrs. Lillian Hughes made a business trip to Grayling early this week.

Mrs. Phillip Hoy of Rose City is spending a few days with her daughter, Mrs. C. A. Cook.

Robert Jackson returned Monday from the Government Hospital in Chicago.

The following trustees for the unit school system recently adopted in South Branch Township were elected at the special election held Monday, July 10th:

Trustee for 1 year Hugo Schreiber. Trustee for 2 years James Williams. Trustee for 3 years Oliver B. Scott. Trustee for 3 years Fred Hartman. Trustee for 3 years Geo. L. Royce.

Mr. and Mrs. Atwell have gone to the plains huckleberrying.

Jim Sereff of Erie was here looking after huckleberrying.

Bernard Bromwell and Ed. Stuck spent the week-end in Sharon.

James Grover is home after an absence of a couple of months.

Ed. Matt returned from Coleman where he spent the Fourth of July.

During the severe electrical storm Sunday evening the lightning struck a telegraph pole across the track from the hotel Riverview. It followed the wire to the hotel, burning both wires of the telephone, melting up some of the screen wire on the porch, and splintering up some of the porch boards, but never set fire.

Frederic Bromwell went to Traverse City Sunday.

Miss Josie Stephens is at home.

Irvin Ingersoll has bought a Ford V. Potter is improving.

Frank Dreese of Grayling took supper with Chas. Stephens Friday.

Jim and Luke Gibbons are home from Coff and Mitchell's camp.

Mr. Workman Wm. Wells are happy over the arrival of another boy at their home.

Standardizing Factory WORK ENABLES SHOE COMPANY TO CUT COST

The Edmonds Shoe Company of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, has succeeded in standardizing the manufacture of their "FOOTITERS" shoes, thus enabling them to manufacture a shoe of the finest quality and workmanship at a minimum cost.

This saving in cost of manufacture has been passed to the buyer and "FOOTITERS" can be purchased from two to three dollars less than other shoes in the same grade.

In the "FOOTITERS" factory each workman does but one thing—and does that well. In fact, each is a specialist in his work. This specialization or standardization of production lowers manufacturing costs.

The Edmonds Shoe Company has further standardized their production by having but one factory specification. That is, one quality, one grade, and one leather. But four lasts are used, giving five styles that enables a purchaser to select from a variety of patterns.

"FOOTITERS" have already made a name for themselves and are leaving a host of friends and wearers wherever they appear.

A well known slogan of the company is "Wear a pair yourself." They are sold in Grayling by Esben Olson.—Adv.

MORTGAGE SALE.

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of the money secured by a mortgage dated the 26th day of September, A. D. 1917, executed by Alva E. Hittle, and Stella M. Hittle, his wife, of the City of Elwood, State of Indiana, to George Burke, of the County of Crawford, State of Michigan, which said mortgage was recorded in the office of the register of deeds for the County of Crawford, and State of Michigan, in Liber H of Mortgages on page 289, on the 8th day of November, A. D. 1917, at eight o'clock a. m.

And whereas the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice is the sum of one hundred eighty-three and 75-100 ($183.75) dollars of principal and interest, and the further sum of fifteen dollars as an attorney fee stipulated for in said mortgage, and which is the whole amount claimed to be unpaid on said mortgage and no suit or proceeding having been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt now remaining secured by said mortgage or any part thereof, whereby the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power of sale in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises therein described at public auction to the highest bidder at the front door of the court house in the Village of Grayling, in said County of Crawford, on the 17th day of August, A. D. 1922, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, which said premises are described as follows, to-wit:

All that certain piece or parcel of land situate and being in the Township of Beaver Creek, County of Crawford, and State of Michigan, described as Lot One, Block Thirteen, of Hadley's Second Addition to the Village of Grayling, according to the recorded plat thereof.

Dated May 3rd, 1922.

WHY SUFFER FROM RHEUMATISM.

Do you know that nine out of every ten cases of rheumatism are simply rheumatism of the muscles or chronic rheumatism, neither of which require any internal treatment? The pain may be relieved by applying Chamberlain's Liniment, which makes sleep and rest possible, and that certainly means a great deal to any one afflicted with rheumatism.

BILIOUSNESS AND CONSTIPATION.

"For years I was troubled with biliousness and constipation, which made life miserable for me. My appetite failed me. I lost my usual force and vitality. Peppin preparations and cathartics only made matters worse. I do not know where I should have been today had I not tried Chamberlain's Tablets. The tablets relieve the ill feeling at once, strengthen the digestive functions, helping the system to do its work naturally," writes Mrs. Rosa Potts, Birmingham, Ala.

A SPLENDID MEDICINE FOR THE STOMACH AND LIVER.

"Chamberlain's Tablets for the stomach and liver are splendid. I never tire of telling my friends and neighbors of their qualities," writes Mrs. William Vollmer, Eastwood, N. Y. When bilious, constipated or troubled with indigestion, give them a trial. They will do you good.

STATE OF MICHIGAN.

The Circuit Court for the County of Crawford in Chancery.

Ethel Davis, Plaintiff, vs.
John R. Davis, Defendant.

Suit pending in the Circuit Court for Crawford County, in Chancery, on the tenth day of June, A. D. 1922, at the Village of Grayling, in said County of Crawford.

It is satisfactorily appearing to the court by affidavit on file that a chancery summons has been duly issued out of and under the seal of said court, for the appearance of said defendant therein, and that the same could not be served on the defendant because after diligent search and inquiry it could not be ascertained in what state or country the said defendant resided, or the whereabouts of said defendant, learned, and that the said chancery summons has been returned by the sheriff of Gogebic County, State of Michigan, the last known place of residence of the defendant with his certificate thereon endorsed that after diligent search and inquiry he was unable to find the said defendant within his bailiwick on or before the return day of said summons, on motion of H. L. Fitch, attorney for said plaintiff, IT IS ORDERED, that the said defendant, John R. Davis, cause his appearance to be entered in this cause within three months after the date of this order, and in case of his appearance that he cause his answer to the plaintiff's bill of complaint to be filed and a copy thereof served on plaintiff's attorney, within 15 days after service on him of a copy of said bill and notice of this order, and that in default thereof said bill be taken as confessed by said defendant.

And on like motion, IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, that within 15 days after the date hereof, the plaintiff cause a notice of this order to be published in the Crawford Avalanche, a newspaper, printed, published, and circulating in said County of Crawford, and that such publication be continued at least once in each week; for six weeks in succession, or that she cause a copy of this order to be personally served upon said defendant, at least 15 days before the time above prescribed for his appearance.

And on like motion, IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, that the said plaintiff cause a copy of this order to be mailed to said defendant, at his last known postoffice address, by registered mail, and a return receipt be demanded at least 20 days before the date herein prescribed for his appearance.

RECOMMENDS CHAMBERLAIN'S TABLETS.

"Chamberlain's Tablets have been used by my husband and myself out and on for the past five years. When my husband goes away from home he always takes a bottle of them along with him. Whenever I have that heavy feeling after eating, or feel dull and played out, I take one or two of Chamberlain's Tablets and they fix me up fine," writes Mrs. Newton Vreeland, Minna, N. Y. Take these tablets when troubled with constipation or indigestion and they will do you good.

Catarhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Chamberlain's Catarrhal Deafness Remedy is a powerful medicine that acts on the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed, it causes a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflammation of the mucous surface of the Eustachian Tube. Chamberlain's Catarrhal Deafness Remedy acts on the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Medicine. Circulars free. All Druggists. "66."
